

REPLICA UPDATE VECTORS

Abstract

A directory server including a supplier server, a consumer server in communication with the supplier server, a plurality of pluggable services that manage replication of data contained within the directory server from the supplier server to the consumer server; and a replica update vector used to determine a minimal set of updates necessary to synchronize the consumer server with respect to the supplier server. Replication of data is managed using the replica update vector.

18931_1.DOC

FOI b7E b7C b7D